DSI launches special website on fundamental rights and duties of residents, consular protection and consular services

The Identification Services Bureau has set up a special website on fundamental rights and duties of residents, consular protection and consular services (www.dsi.gov.mo/frdcp). The website was launched on 1 December 2015 for the public.

The special website aims at enriching the knowledge of Macao residents on their fundamental rights and duties under the protection of the Basic Law; introducing consular protection and consular services; and providing tips on the preparation before going abroad, safety reminders and emergency contact information for travelling overseas. Moreover, video and online game are available on the special website, creating a lively environment for citizens to enhance their knowledge on the fundamental rights and duties of residents, consular protection and consular services.

In addition, the Identification Services Bureau will introduce a prize-winning online game on the special website on 1 December 2015 and welcomes citizens to participate. Citizens who finish the game successfully can join a lucky draw for a special gift.
